To The Promotion Committee of Rowan College at Burlington County,

I am writing this letter to express my support for the proposed advancement of Brooke Mailhiot, Entertainment Technologies and Communication Arts Instructor & Program Coordinator, ET Video & Digital Media, ET Sound & Recording Engineering, to an Assistant Professor faculty member position at RCBC. Having worked with Brooke Mailhiot since 2016, I am confident that she has the necessary academic, personal, and teaching ability to excel as a tenured faculty member in the Entertainment Technology program.

Brooke Mailhiot began her career at RCBC in 2009 as an adjunct. She was later hired as a full-time instructor in 2015 and took on the responsibility of revamping the Associates of Applied Science degrees in Entertainment Technologies Sound and Recording Engineering and Video and Digital Media Production. I have had the pleasure of working with Brooke through my administration of the Perkins grant. The working relationship that we have shared over the past several years has allowed me to understand Brooke's strong commitment to enhancing the quality of the Entertainment Technology program for her students and fellow colleagues.

As a life-long learner, Brooke continues to immerse herself in current topics as it relates to the Entertainment Technology industry. Her membership to various organizations which include the National Council of Women, NY Women in Communications, University Film & Video Association, Philadelphia Advertising Club, and the Greater Philadelphia Videographers Association always provides an eagerness to share learned information with her fellow staff and students. As a cutting-edge professor, Brooke continues to take the knowledge that she has gained and evaluate its potential impact on improving the Entertainment Technology curriculum so that it is innovative and current.

Brooke asserts herself as a dedicated teacher and goes above and beyond to research and provide enrichment activities designed to enhance her student's learning experiences. Since the Fall of 2016, she has organized her Documentary Field Production class to partner with a nonprofit organization to develop documentaries that tell the organization's story, including its mission, goals, and impact on society. The service-learning projects provide students with real-world experiences and the opportunity to interact with a population they may have never interacted with before; the nonprofits are provided with a media piece that tells their story. The Documentary Field Production class is popular among students as Brooke ensures that it is a successful learning experience that yields high-quality, internationally award-winning media productions.

Brooke Mailhiot is an excellent representation of the distinguished faculty that prevails at RCBC and I am confident that she will exceed all expectations as an Assistant Professor of the Entertainment Technology program. I fully support her advancement.

If I can be of further assistance, or additional information is required, please feel free to contact me at 856-291-4254.

Sincerely,
